‘Teaching the Evening Business Communication is energising as the course can be tailored to the class, the class sizes are small, and the attendees can go back to their workplaces knowing they have the perfect scenario to practise their newly learnt vocabulary/skills. From writing, listening, meetings, culture and small talk, there are a wealth of skills that are taught from an English-speakers perspective, building on transferable skills. From my point of view (teacher), there’s nothing more satisfying than a student coming and telling you they’ve used a technique discussed and them getting positive feedback on it! Job satisfaction both ways!’
